10:30-11:45 am - Breakout Session 1

* Liberation Books: A Panel Discussion with Street Books and PDX Books to Prisoners - Patti Moran with Street Books, Sarah Forman with PDX Books to Prisoners, and Jan Rippey with Dolly Parton's Imagination Library, Barlow Room

A lively panel discussion featuring local outreach organizations that help uplift, educate, and empower the community by making free reading materials available to those most in need.

* Examining Tribal History Through an Indigenous Perspective - Jillisa Suppah & Jaylan Suppah, Ullman Hall

Exploring a brief history of the Tribes within the Central Oregon area through an indigenous perspective with a short overview of the Tribes of Oregon. We will examine the history of local tribes around education, food sovereignty, land acknowledgements, learn about ceded lands and what that means. We will explore how we can be more inclusive, connecting to resources and how to be an ally.

1:15-2:40 pm - Breakout Session 2

* How To Be an Everyday Intellectual Freedom Fighter - Perry Stokes & Emily O'Neal, Ullman Hall

It might not always feel special, but every time you add an item to the catalog, make a book recommendation, create a display, or check something in or out, you're helping exercise a fundamental human right. One of the foundational values of libraries – indeed, one of the pillars of democracy itself – is the freedom of information. Join members of the Oregon Intellectual Freedom Committee (OIFC) to learn about recent challenges and your critical role as support staff in defending the Freedom To Read!

* Seeing the Unseen: New Perspectives of Life on the Streets - Andrew Hogan, Jennifer Bradford, and Sandra Hahn with Street Roots, Barlow Room

This presentation will weave real stories, lived experiences and personal anecdotes to help participants reframe how they see or talk about individuals experiencing homelessness. This presentation will be interactive and have a Q & A session at the end.

Thank you!

The SSD Committee would like to thank those who helped make this conference possible.
